What makes a

Fourfields

Reader?

Can phonetically decode new words.

Can read with expression and prosody.

Can read fluently at a level which is appropriately challenging and engaging.

Can retrieve information using skimming and scanning skills.

Can make predictions about what they are reading.

Can infer meaning from a text.

Can discuss the choices the writer has made.

Can summarise main ideas from a text.

Has a passion for reading and a love of books.

Can explain their opinion based on their understanding of the text.